

REDISTRICTING ASSISTANCE SITES

For the first time in California history state-level legislative district lines will be redrawn by an independent Citizens Redistricting Commission. The Commission has begun their work and this is your opportunity to get involved.

The University of California, Berkeley, is opening regional redistricting technical assistance centers across the State, funded by the James Irvine Foundation. The purpose of these centers is to provide Californians access to data, software, and expertise so that they can effectively communicate valuable information about their communities to the Commission.
